1. Building your vocabulary is like building a strong base brick by brick. However, building vocabulary involves more than just learning words. Here are some right ways to learn words.

First, you should use the words you learn more often. The best way to build vocabulary is to be an active learner. Here are the steps to be one: to learn ten new words every day, to write them down in a diary, and to use them in conversation. When you use as many new words as you can in real life, you can easily memorize them and they will become part of your knowledge.

Second, it is also good to learn words in small groups. By doing this, you can master a language in a more systematic way. There are no magical shortcuts to learning words. Remember that making your vocabulary larger needs time and practice in right ways. For example, some roots of English words come from Latin (拉丁) or Greek (希臘), and to learn these words, it's better to know how they are formed first. The more you know a word, the better you can memorize and use it.

Third, to build your vocabulary, you should develop a strong feeling which always tells you it is worth doing. Reading out the words or writing them down may sometimes be boring to you, so try to practice them with what you like.

Dear Diary,

Help! Please tell me what to do! I found a card in my desk drawer at school today, but I don't know who it was from.

I can tell that it was made by hand. It was beautifully designed and decorated with lots of beautiful flowers and drawings. Also, a note was written inside. It said that the sender of the card thought that I was a wonderful person. He then listed how big and bright my eyes are, how my skin shines, and how good I smell. He wanted to know what made me laugh because he loved how my laugh sounded. He said it was so wonderful that he could listen to it all day long every day. Finally, he explained how he always wanted to talk to me, but he was not brave enough to do so. He said he wasn't sure if I would be scared off by him. That was why he decided to send the card.

I have no idea who this person could be. I also don't know whether I should try to find it out. However, I know that I'm very surprised at this, but I'm even more curious about it.
